Message from the Chairman

The work of the National Timber Harvesting and Transportation Safety Foundation is ongoing and vital. The Foundation envisions continuous improvement in the following areas:

- Forest workers will be properly trained and will use personal protective equipment.
- All timber harvesting and transportation operations will utilize and enforce active safety programs.
- Timber harvesting and transportation worker injury and fatality rates continue to decrease significantly.
- Consuming mills have programs that promote and encourage safety improvements.
- State forestry schools will have active safety research and extension programs.
- Participation in the development and dissemination of research and training materials by state forestry and professional logger associations will continue to increase.
- Timber harvesting and transportation operations will be viewed as safe and valued employment.
- Operating costs for timber harvesting and transportation operations will be reduced through safer operations as a result of fewer accidents and injuries.

With your help, the THATS Foundation will continue to work toward its mission and goals on behalf of the entire forest products industry.

Kent Hall, Chairman
